- b. Due to the nature of our operations, the boundaries between our profession, volunteer time and social life can often be blurred.
- c. Honesty is always the best policy, especially online. It is important that you think of the web as a permanent record of online actions and opinions.
- d. When using the internet for professional or personal pursuits, everyone must respect INFQ/ members (defined) and follow the guidelines in place to ensure the intellectual property or our relationship with member centres and its members is not compromised (see 5.0 below).

7. Consideration towards others when using social networking sites:

Social networking sites allow photographs, videos and comments to be shared with thousands of other users. It should be recognized that it may not be appropriate to share photographs, videos and comments in this way. For example, there may be an expectation that photographs taken at a private function or activity will not appear publicly on the internet.
